MORGAN FUNERAL PLANS ARE BALKED BY ILLNESS OF HIS DAUGHTER IN ROME

Financier's Body Is Embalmed and Placed in Three Caskets, Surrounded by Rome's Entire Supply of Cut Flowers

ROME, April 1.—The body of J. Pierpont Morgan, which was treated for preservation to-day, will probably be sent to New York on the Koenig Albert. Reservations for the members of the family have been offered to Herbert L. Satterlee, his son-in-law and partner. The plans are in abeyance owing to the illness of Mrs. Satterlee due to her grief, and to await the wireless approval of William Pierson Hamilton, also a son-in-law and partner, who is on his way to Liverpool on the Adriatic, and that of the son, J. Pierpont Morgan, in New York.

There was also talk of conveying the body to Cherbourg by special train to-night and starting the voyage to New York to-morrow. In that event the services here must be declined on account of the brevity of time.

Mrs. Satterlee's condition is causing the gravest concern. She had to be carried to her own room after collapsing when she saw her father die. Mr. Satterlee, while forcing himself to attend to the many details requiring his attention, is in hardly better condition. Miss Helen Hamilton, who sailed from New York with Mr. Morgan, and was at his side throughout his illness, working with the trained nurses, is also ill.

FINANCIER'S BODY ENCLOSED IN THREE CASKETS.

The body of Mr. Morgan, after it had been embalmed and dressed, was enclosed in a walnut coffin lined with white brocade. This was placed in a leaden casket and finally in a third case of heavy walnut with gold and silver fittings.

Before the body is taken from Rome there will be a brief Episcopal funeral service, jointly conducted by the Rev. Gardner Brown, rector of All Saints, the English Episcopal Church, and the Rev. Mr. Nelson, rector of the American Episcopal Church.

United States Ambassador O'Brien has offered the Embassy for the service in pursuance of instructions received from the Secretary of State. When the undertakers finished their task to-day permission was given by Mrs. Satterlee for Albin Polasek, a Philadelphia student, to make a death mask of the financier. Polasek is studying in the American Academy here, founded with Morgan's money, and his study was financed by Morgan. WATCHERS' SERVICES DECLINED BY THE FAMILY.

Throughout the night the second floor of the hotel, taken up entirely by the Morgan suite, was almost deserted. Neither the Satterlees nor any of the other relatives or immediate friends were in the death chamber. Scores of actual friends offered their services as watchers, but their offers were declined, as were those of the diplomatic representatives. Pace, the faithful Italian courier who had served Morgan on his annual visits to Rome for many years, was on guard at the door of the suite, and everything was attended to by the six paid men who watched the corpse.

Mr. Morgan's body was treated for preservation at 8 o'clock this morning. Every florist's shop in Rome has been denuded of its stock through the desire of friends of the financier, not only those in Rome but those who have placed orders from all over Europe and America, to send tribute to his memory.

The Italian Government interposes almost endless red tape in the removal of bodies from this country, but in the case of Mr. Morgan it was arranged that usual delays would be obviated through the influence of Ambassador O'Brien. The removal of the body is expected very soon, but no definite plans have been announced further than that the body would be conveyed to Naples by special train and from there taken to New York.

GREAT QUANTITIES OF FLOWERS MASSED IN ROOM.

Immense quantities of flowers—tributes of the distinguished living to the distinguished dead—are massed in the room. Conspicuous among the floral offerings are pink carnations, for which Mr. Morgan had a decided preference. More than three thousand telegrams and cablegrams—several from royalty—expressing grief have been received.

HOW RICH WAS J. P. MORGAN? ESTIMATES OF WEALTH RUN FROM 50 TO 500 MILLIONS

Few Even of Financier's Intimates Care to Speculate—Report of Recent Profit In Steel of $60,000,000

How rich was J. P. Morgan? That is the question that rose to the lips of the whole world when news of his death was flashed from Rome. For, barring the few thousands who knew him as a masterly art connoisseur, barring the few scores who knew him intimately as a man, with a man's weaknesses and follies as well as the surprising genius of a very unusual personality, to the world at large the man who died yesterday in a Roman hotel stood only as a rich man. He was known over all the earth as one of the world's richest men.

Perhaps no one topic of interest has centered about itself greater speculation than this in the last twenty-four hours. And it is easier to forecast the cotton crop ten years hence, to give the exact figure of Union Pacific dividends in 1914 than to tell how rich J. P. Morgan was.

Francis Lynde Stetson, who for years had acted as personal counsel of Mr. Morgan, and who may have drawn the banker's will and the codicils attached thereto, said in his office, at No. 25 Broadway street, to-day that he believed the will would not be read until after the funeral in this city. He would not confirm the belief that he assisted in drawing the will and that he knows its contents.

ESTIMATES VARY FROM $50,000,000 TO $500,000,000.

The estimates that have been made by those professing to be in the position to know whereof they speak vary from $50,000,000, or even under that figure, to $500,000,000. Between the two extremes are enough opinions to fund the debt of a third class European power. If it develops upon the publication of Mr. Morgan's will and the appraisal of his vast estate that the $500,000,000 minimum guess is the nearest to being correct it will be shown that J. P. Morgan died a poorer man than E. H. Harriman, who left, roughly, $70,000,000. If it develops that $500,000,000 approximates the sum of the great banker's holdings, he will, even then, have been not so rich a man as John D. Rockefeller.

LID DOWN TIGHT 1 A. M. TO-MORROW, GAYNOR'S ORDER

Every All-Night License Is Revoked, Waldo Is Instructed, at City Hall.

'DIVES' TO STAY CLOSED

Mayor to Reissue Permits for Orderly Restaurants Later, Is Clean-Up Plan.

Somebody seems to have blundered in carrying out Mayor Gaynor's order to close, sharp at 1 A. M. to-day, all the former all-night restaurants and saloons in the city, and as a result New York will experience a second draught to-morrow morning. This morning comparatively few of the all-night resorts were shut down, and it was explained to-day at Police Headquarters that no attempt had been made to close every place; that this would be done to-morrow, and that the places closed this morning were those only whose licenses expired at 1 A. M. April 1, and whose proprietors were endeavoring to squeeze in one more night's business before the enforcement of the Mayor's order.

Police Commissioner Waldo was summoned to Mayor Gaynor's office to-day, and it is understood, was asked to explain why every place had not been closed promptly at 1 A. M. Certain it is, that such had been the Mayor's intention, for in his order of March 31, announcing the revocation of all licenses of all-night places, he wrote distinctly that the order should be enforced at 1 A. M. April 1.

WHOLE TOWN GOES TIGHT SHUT TO-MORROW.

Whatever may have been the misunderstanding which resulted in the failure to close those places, proprietors of which could exhibit licenses still unexpired, these latter will be shut down sharp at 1 to-morrow. Holders of licenses, expiring in time to run will receive a part of their license fee in return for the peremptory revocation of their licenses, but they will not be permitted to remain open after to-morrow. The Mayor has the power to revoke a license at any time and to refund a part of the fee, and he has determined to adopt this course, it was said at City Hall.

Commissioner Waldo gave orders to-day to every Inspector and Captain, advising them of the Mayor's wishes, and he cautioned them that no exception must be made. In fact, not only the places which have run with license, but those whose proprietors have operated without official sanction are to feel the hand of the policeman.

The Commissioner was careful to make it clear that all excise violation must be stopped. Saloons must be thrown open to view from the street so that every passerby could see whether or not trade was going on inside and this view must be such that not even a glass of beer could be slipped into a back room to a thirsty customer, however long and well he might be known.

WILL ISSUE NEW LICENSES TO SOME RESORTS.

Mayor Gaynor allowed it to be known to-day, however, that he had no intention of drying up the city thoroughly. In fact, he gave orders to-day to extend the all night privileges to a resort in Herald Square.

But this does not mean that he is going to permit a general reopening of cabaret places of the "fandango" type, where dances were the feature, in the presence of young men and women. "They ran in these disorderly and objectionable places without my knowledge," that's why I insisted on a sweeping change," said the Mayor to-day, explaining his attitude to a committee from the Liquor Dealers' Association, who called at the City Hall to consult with him and incidentally to add $2,500 to the fund for the flood sufferers donated at a meeting of the organization Saturday last.

IMPOSED UPON, IN SOME CASES, MAYOR SAYS.

By the term "ran in" the Mayor meant that he had been imposed upon. The reports to which he objected and which had managed through some form of influence to get possession of all-night licenses had been described to the Mayor as respectable resorts, catering to well-behaved after-theatre patrons and in which substantial meals were served. He explained that he was also given to understand that no rooms or private apartments were attached to

BRONX SENATOR WHOSE RESIGNATION SULZER DEMANDS.

LEVEE DYNAMITED TO SAVE PEOPLE FROM FLOOD DEATH

Big Break Made Near Shawneetown, Ill., Lessens Peril of Loss of Life in City.

SHAWNEETOWN, Ill., April 1.—All hope of saving Shawneetown from the Ohio Valley flood was abandoned this afternoon when the City Council in special session voted to dynamite the big levee. Fifty sticks of dynamite were exploded in the extreme west levee, two miles west of and below the city. Previously the court house bell was tolled for half an hour, and militiamen spread the alarm through the streets. The broken levee sent a volume of back water which bids fair to inundate the town in a few hours.

Fear that if the rise was permitted to top the levee the huge dike would split and the rush of waters would result in loss of life and heavy destruction of property resulted in the decision to use dynamite.

With the water backing in from the break below the town the levee will be supported and the loss from rushing waters eliminated.

Shawneetown, protected on three sides by the levee and on the rear by a fringe of hills, is a peninsula. For several miles on either side the back water has covered farms and scores of houses are under water to the rooftops. No loss of life has been reported.

Cel. Lang, in charge of the troops, is taking steps to prevent looting. The population has fled from this city to escape the flood. Most of the refugees are women and children. A large majority of the men who remain are fighting to save the city. State troops are out in squads of five raiding the roads, in the rescue work. The authorities are determined to keep these creatures under control and to prevent looting. Orders will be issued to arrest every shoddy thief at robbery.

George H. Kendall of Bank Note Company Tells Sulzer Members of Two Committees Were Offered for Sale by Bronx Senator.

SENATE CLERK WHO GOT MONEY QUILTS HIS JOB

Stilwell Denies Any Part in Bribery and Refuses to Resign, as Demanded by the Governor.

ALBANY, April 1.—An accusation made by George H. Kendall, President of the New York Bank Note Company, that Senator Stephen J. Stilwell of the Twenty-first District, Bronx, demanded money for reporting a bill on Stock Exchange reforms out of committee led Gov. Sulzer to demand Stilwell's resignation this afternoon. Stilwell refused to resign from the Senate, and the entire matter was turned over by the Governor to Attorney-General Carmody for appropriate action. The Attorney-General is preparing a report to the Senate.

Mr. Kendall, who has long been a foe of the New York Stock Exchange, because his firm is prohibited from exchanging stocks and bonds listed on the Exchange charges that Stilwell, through Senate Revision Clerk Lewis, taxed him $250 to draw a certain bill having to do with Stock Exchange reform. He charges further that Stilwell demanded $500 each for four of the members of the Code Committee of the Senate, of which he is chairman, an $1,500 for members of the Assembly Code Committee—$3,500 in all to be paid in advance.

ONLY STILWELL ACCUSED IN KENDALL'S CHARGES.

Mr. Kendall makes no charge against any member of the Legislature except Senator Stilwell and thus far no other legislator is involved. But Senator Wagner has asked that Revision Clerk Lewis be removed.

The Senate Codes Committee is made up of Senator Stilwell, New York; Herman H. Torborg, Brooklyn; William B. Carwell, Brooklyn; Walter R. Herrick, New York; Gottfried H. Wende, Buffalo; Herbert P. Coats, Saratoga Lake; George F. Thompson, Middleport; and Bernard M. Patten, New York.

The Assembly Codes Committee is composed of McGrath of New York; Schwarz, Rensselaer; A. Greenberg, New York; Dox, Schoharie; Carroll, New York; Dietz, Kings; Hamilton, Kings; J. D. Kelly, New York; Cottino, New York; Pennington, Tiora; Richard Allen, Knight, Wyoming, and Sullivan, New York.

There have been so many open and well known about money being passed in connection with the Stock Exchange legislation that something was due to happen, and Gov. Sulzer supplied the happening at noon to-day when he gave out a telegram which he said he had received from Mr. Kendall. The sender of the telegram was in Albany, having been summoned to the capital by the Governor. Here is Mr. Kendall's telegram:

"I offer you evidence that Stilwell, the man you sent to draw my Stock Exchange bill, charged me $250 for drawing it. He introduced me to Senate Revision Clerk Lewis and asked me to send check for that amount to him and they divided proceeds of check."

"I offer you evidence that Stilwell wrote me March 31 to come to his office next day and demand $500 each for four of the Codes Committee to report the bill out of committee."

"I offer you evidence of the amount—namely, $1,500—of his telegram. I declined his proposition. He called me up next day and told me there was nothing doing unless I paid $2,500 in advance."

"I replied I would telegraph the whole matter to you and every legislator unless he reported the bill out in twenty-four hours. He did it. Under some penalty I demanded of him that my bill be reported out of the Assembly committee immediately and it was done in forty-eight hours."

"Confronting this matter, I think I ought to let you know anyway, and
